

Family Service and Guidance Center is proud to present

Happy Bear

Since 1992, Family Service and Guidance Center (FSGC) has been taking its cuddly costumed character Happy Bear into classrooms, school assemblies, youth groups and a wide variety of settings to teach children about a subject that isn't always easy to talk about: sexual abuse. With the help of his "teacher" – a highly-trained FSGC staff member – and the children attending the program, Happy Bear learns about "good touch" (such as a nice hug), "bad touch" (hitting), and "mixed-up touch" (sexual abuse), all presented in a way that is easily understood by the children.

Designed for children ages four to eight, this highly-interactive and fun program not only brings about awareness among the children, teachers and parents who attend, but it teaches perhaps the most valuable message of all: protection of one's self and prevention of sexual abuse. Children learn what to do if they experience "bad" or "mixed-up touches." Presenters never name body parts but refer to "body parts they cover with their bathing suits."

Via the school, FSGC sends a letter to parents in advance of Happy Bear's visit to their child's classroom, allowing parents to call and ask questions or discuss concern they might have. Parents also have the option of not having their child attend. Finally, parents are always encouraged to attend so they can better understand Happy Bear's important message and talk honestly with their child.
